PHOSPHORESCENT OCEAN.

Little Gelatinous Organisms Which Create the Appearance.

A milky opalescence, permeating the entire sea for immense distances bounded only by the horizon, is a somewhat rare phenomenon. It appears quite suddenly, lasts perhaps for several hours and passes away as rapidly as it came, and this without apparent cause. At midnight we had the singular whiteness enveloping the sea, while the more brilliant kinds of phosphorescence shone in the midst of flashing green, yellow or bluish lights, as the case might be—a gorgeous nocturnal display.

During these hours my surface trawl net drifted astern of the ship. The water was alive with countless myriads of little gelatinous sacs measuring one-sixth of an inch in length—delicate tunicated organisms which required the aid of a microscope to reveal their perfect structure. A few specimens placed in an empty meat tin in a darkened cabin could be seen indeed with the naked eyes careening madly around in the salt water, each one glowing with that peculiar opalescent light which saturated the entire sea for so many miles. It was a small species of salpa, nearly related to a much larger kind on the side of which the late Professor Moseley wrote his name with his finger, the signature being visible on the dead body throughout the night, glowing with the brightest phosphorescent light.—Cornhill Magazine.

Speaking English. Almost any one who speaks English might be put down successfully in half a dozen places where English is supposed to be the mother tongue and hear as many dialects spoken, not one of which he would understand until it was interpreted. An old Lancashire worthy and a London lady were one day occupants of a railway carriage. The train had been waiting long at a certain station, and there was no appearance of it starting when the worthy remarked:

"They're a gey, tanglesome lot here." "I beg your pardon," said the lady. "I'm sayin' they're a gey daddlin' lot here." "I really beg your pardon, sir." "I'm observin' they are a vera drech lot here the night." "Really I must again beg your pardon. I don't comprehend you." "I was just tryin' to say that the train was late." "Indeed, sir, it is—very late," agreed the lady and then collapsed.—London Tit-Bits.

A Pocket Handkerchief. In a book which has been published on that never failing topic, the vagaries of the English language, the strange meaning of the word "pocket handkerchief" is described.

A "kerchief" (couvrechef) means a small piece of cloth made to put on the head, so that a "pocket handkerchief" means literally a small piece of cloth to cover the head, to be held in the hand, to be put in the pocket.—London Globe.

Two million Americans suffer the torturing pangs of dyspepsia. No need to. Burdock Blood Bitters cures. At any drug store.

Hungry, but Fastidious. "Lady," said the wayfarer, "I can't eat these scraps."

"You can't," said the housewife in surprise. "Why, you just told me that you were so hungry you could eat a house."

"Yes, mum; but I meant a porter-house."—Chicago News.

Knew Her. He—So you know my wife?

She—Oh, very well indeed. He—I wasn't aware you had met. She—We haven't, but I have a maid who was employed in your house for two months.—Illustrated Bits.

Dangerous If Neglected. Burns, cuts, and other wounds often fall to heal properly if neglected, and become troublesome sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, prevents such consequences. Even where delay has aggravated the injury, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve effects a cure. "I had a running sore on my leg for thirty years," says H. C. Hartley, Yanketown, Ind. "After using many remedies, I tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A few boxes healed the sore." Cures all skin diseases. Piles yielded to it at once. Beware of counterfeits.

Satisfactory Excuse. "I am a self made man," said the pompous individual, with his chest expanded.

Nothing makes the earth seem so spacious as to have friends at a distance. They make the latitudes and longitudes.

Like a Drowning Man "Five years ago a disease the doctors called dyspepsia, took such hold of me that I could scarcely go," writes Geo. S. March, a well known attorney of Nocona, Tex. "I took quantities of pepsin and other medicines but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. I felt an improvement at once and after a few bottles am sound and well." Kodol is the only preparation which exactly reproduces the natural digestive juices and consequently is the only one which digests any good food and ureas any form of stomach trouble.

Breathe Through Your Nose. In all kinds of atmosphere the breath should only be inhaled through the nose. An occasional breath of extra pure air through the mouth may be good, but in cars and in most offices and rooms nose breathing is essential. A second rule is, since so much time is spent in cars and offices and rooms in earning a livelihood and since these places are overheated and underventilated—the heating and ventilation being out of the control of most of us—we must take in fresh air whenever possible in order that we may restore the balance. The best times to do this will be early in the morning, when the air is freshest, and late at night, when deep breathing will help us to get sleep. We may breathe correctly while we are waiting in a street and especially where streets meet. We can soon form an automatic habit of breathing properly on such occasions.

Children like it. "One Minute Cough Cure is the best cough medicine I ever used," says J. H. Bowles, of Groveton, N. H. "I never found anything else that acted so safely and quickly."

Another Great Cure

Grand and mysterious are the many wonderful cures made by one of Barre's most prominent physicians—prominent because he cures to stay cured. There are cases that have baffled the skill of many of our best physicians at home and elsewhere, where patients that have been given up to die are to day living, walking testimonials of this great specialist's ability to cure after others have failed. And there is scarcely a day that we do not hear of some wonderful cure made by this great specialist. For illustration take the case of Mr. William McGee one of our best known and most respected citizens, whose residence is at No. 182 South Main street. When seen by the writer he said:

"I know Dr. Merrow well. He is not only a first-class physician but a perfect gentleman, and I would trust my life or the lives of my family in his hands at any time. Today I owe my life to him. If it had not been for him I should not have been alive to day. This I am sure of. For the past ten years I have been a great sufferer from stomach trouble and catarrh of the bowels, and have been treated by many physicians at home and elsewhere with but little relief. While suffering a severe attack of bowel trouble last October, the 23d, I was taken down with typhoid fever in a very severe form—I believe I am able to judge, as this was my third attack—and I had been told by doctors the second time I had the fever that, with my severe stomach and bowel trouble, if I ever had it again I could not live. But while there is life there is hope, and as Dr. Merrow had done so much for my little daughter, in the treatment of catarrh, I sent for him. He went to work on me as though he knew his business, and in nine days he had the fever broken and in fourteen days I was able to go out of doors, although very weak. But Dr. Merrow carefully attended to me for about two months, when he pronounced me cured, and up to the present time I have had no return of any of old troubles and feel better and weigh more than I have for the past ten years. I am sure the cure is permanent and would honestly recommend Dr. Merrow of No. 3 South Main street, Barre, Vt., to any and all of my friends that need honest medical attention. (Signed) WILLIAM MCGEE."

At city of Barre this 26th day of March, A. D. 1902, William McGee personally appeared before me and acknowledged the truth of the foregoing statement.

The First Step. The children were having a writing lesson.

"Set me copy, too!" pleaded little Ronnie.

"But you can't write, dear!" the governess reminded him.

"Then set me some b'ots!" commanded Ronnie.

He evidently considered blots a step toward writing.—Home Chat.

Dinner Among the Romans. The Romans in the time of Cicero and Augustus took an early breakfast.

from 3 to 4 in the morning, a luncheon at 12 or 1 and at about 3 o'clock the cena or principal meal of the day, corresponding with our dinner. Concurrently we read of some not dining until sunset.

Spotted His Eloquence. A committee of Kentuckians went to see Abraham Lincoln in 1861 with reference to the abolition of slavery.

Many Kentuckians owned slaves. They were anxious to remain in the Union, but they did not want to lose their bondsmen. The spokesman of the party was a tall man of about Lincoln's height. He made an eloquent speech, filled with fine sentiments and flowery metaphor, and closed with a crashing peroration. After he had finished Lincoln looked at him a moment and then said quietly, "Judge, I believe your legs are as long as mine."

Wants Others to Know. "I have used DeWitt's Little Early Risers for constipation and torpid liver and they are all right. I am glad to endorse them for I think when we find a good thing we ought to let others know it," writes Alfred Heinze Quincy, Ill. They never gripe or distress. Sure, safe pills.

A Taste of Brogue. An Englishman met a man at a French table d'hôte, who addressed him in French. His accent betrayed him, and, rather rudely, the Briton said, "Ah, you are English."

"The devil a doubt of it, darlin'," replied the stranger.

"An Irishman, too, still better," went on the other.

"Well, thin, isn't it strange," said the man, "my French always shows me to be English and my English to be Irish?"

Sulphur occurs very widely distributed in the mineral kingdom, partly free and partly combined with other elements. The free sulphur is either found pure in regularly formed crystals or intimately mixed with earthy matters. In its native state sulphur is largely found in Sicily and Italy and as a general rule in abundance in volcanic districts. The brittleness of sulphur renders the cleavage imperfect. Sulphuric acid is an important combination and a very dangerous one in inexperienced hands. Sulphur combined with a number of elements, such as iron, copper, lead, etc., furnishes the sulphides. In the vegetable kingdom sulphur is a small constituent of the albuminous bodies and of certain volatile irritant oils. Moreover, the vegetable juices contain it in the form of certain sulphates.

An East Indian Amulet.

In India a variety of gems and stones are used as amulets. The most common is the salagrama, a stone about as large as a billiard ball and which is perforated with black. This is supposed to be found only in Gandaki, a river in Nepal. The person who possesses one of these stones is esteemed highly fortunate. He preserves it in a clean cloth, from whence it is sometimes taken to be bathed and perfumed. He believes that the water in which it is washed, if drunk, has the power to preserve from sin. Holding it in his hand, the dying Hindoo expires in peace, trusting in a stone rather than in the living God.
